

Ana Isabel Torres Suarez, Ph.D.

Universidad Complutense de Madrid, Spain.

Professor in the Department of Pharmaceutics and Food Technology, Complutense University of Madrid, Spain. Pharmacist Specialist in Industrial Pharmacy and in Analysis and Control of Medicines and Drugs. Head of the Master in Industrial Pharmacy and Galenic (UCM). Coordinator of the postgraduate course "Targeting and controlled release of drugs for parenteral administration: polymeric systems and nanomedicines". Participation in 60 research projects funded by Spanish public entities and foundations, and by pharmaceutical and related companies (in 42 of them as principal researcher). 104 scientific papers published, 63 in journals indexed in the Journal of Citation Reports. Author of 9 book chapters and a complete book. 135 communications presented to Congresses, 24 invited conferences. 12 doctoral thesis supervised. Award for Excellence in Transfer of Research granted by the UCM (2018). Evaluator of research projects of institutions in Spain, Mexico, Argentina, Chile, Great Britain and Austria. Founder member of the Spanish-Portuguese Local Chapter of the Controlled Release Society. Member, Spanish association of Pharmaceutical Industry (AEFI). Doctor Honoris Causa, Private University Antonio Guillermo Urrelo, Cajamarca, Perú. Notorious member, Peruvian Academy of Pharmacy, Peru. Notorious member, Royal National Academy of Pharmacy, Spain.

<http://nanotechnologysymposium.uagro.mx>